As one of the modern communication tools, the Internet has changed our society and communication rapidly. The significant growth of the Internet use is more than the population growth, which means that there is a possibility that everyone will get connected to the Internet. APNTS as an educational institution provides an Internet connection inside the campus side. This is an opportunity to conduct research upon how the Internet use predicts communication behavior patterns among the resident students of the APNTS community. This study will help us to find out the phenomenon and communication behavior resulting from the Internet use among the resident students in the APNTS community.
