HIS SERIES
At 32 years old, Dean, the inventor of a complex navigating system for planes, which would eventually replace pilots. He's a first class traveler, on his way to Washington, to discuss his ideas with the NTSB. Dean is a pilot himself, he loves flying his three jets across the states, but he preferred a commercial flight that day. He rushes into the cockpit, saves the plane and the passengers. After the ordeal, he notices a beautiful stewardess. She is smitten by him. He's the hero she's always dreamed of. The flight he saves is her last for at least two weeks. She gets some time off.
They meet, go out, have sex and all. But, the man is torn: Should he pursue the sale of his revolutionary system or listen to his new girlfriend? She doesn't like the fact that people would lose their jobs and pilots would be rendered obsolete.

MASSEUSE SERIES
“You know and I know that she’s a very cold woman so I’m going to guess that you got nothing from her.” Chad laughed, giving him a wink. He knew when his brother was upset and under the cool exterior he knew that his brother was fuming.
“I will get her, wait and see. I will get her, she will come back.” Bradley nodded his head, feeling his confidence coming back to him.
“I will make you a thousand dollar bet that I get her before you do. By the end of the week she’s going to be eating out of the palm of my hand.” Chad chuckled; the laughter had hit Bradley wrong, feeling as if Chad was acting like a big shot he wanted him to eat his words.
“You have a bet. A thousand dollars it is. We will see who gets her first.” Bradley glared at him, taking his hand and squeezing Chad’s hand a lot harder than he would have any man and shook it harder than he ever would, almost taking Chad’s arm out of its socket.
