Young people are invariably wooed by liberal groups and the political parties affiliated with them. Yet, fundamentally, young people are conservative. They understand basic ideas such as individual liberty and rules of fair play. They don’t discriminate the way liberals tend to, and they know that hard work should have some correlation to success. Not Another Boring Textbook is written to those people, America’s high school and early college students, in a clear and simple way. The author—a former high school teacher and current university professor—cuts through the liberal indoctrination program and reveals to our nation’s youth how and why they are so conservative. He arms them with facts and explanations to help them identify and resist efforts by the Left’s vast programs to use and manipulate them. Explosive and a bit inflammatory, it is a funny and innovative way to present important political information to young people.
