1. Determine Your Direction (let's figure where you want to go)

2. Determine Your Distractions (let's figure out what's hindering your progress)

3. Determine Your Life's Core Product (let's build your life around something)

4. Determine Your Success Routine (let's start executing a plan of action)

This book is constructed around the fact that life, and nothing in it, is constant. Everything, or most of it changes; so you should focus more on adapting to and managing the changes of life, more than trying to focus on keeping things same; because no matter what, you and everything in your life, will always be moving in one direction, or another.

You life is always either moving away from something, or moving towards something. You want to move away from the things that stop you; things that keep you trapped; things that try to destroy your dream; things that leave you feeling that life is empty, meaningless, and without purpose.

You want to move towards the things that bring you happiness, things that bring fulfillment, things that bring success, significance, and meaning; and this is where you start with figuring out what you should be doing with your life.

But the question is, "How do you manage all of this in your life?"

Well, managing your life is really about managing your forward momentum.

It's about structuring your life in simple but strategic ways that enable you to move almost effortlessly and automatically forward - towards those things that bring you the happiness, fulfillment, and satisfaction that you want and deserve to have as part of your life.

It's about you strategically structuring the direction and path you want your life to move in, and connecting each day with that plan to see real success...because once you do, then the answers to your question, "what should I do with my life?", easily flows like a soft refreshing stream over your life.
